CANADIAN NORTHERN WANTS DUPLICATE RIGHTS HERE

William MacKenzie Writes Letter To Council Asking For 40 Feet Of Columbia Avenue And Right To Build Spurs

Bulletin Special.
When the G.T.P. agreement was up before the minister of railways in Ottawa and the C.N.R. was fighting it so strenuously, the minister told the railway men to get together and fix up a terminal agreement that they all could sign. William MacKenzie for the C.P.R. at once announced that company's willingness to go into a terminal company, providing the C.P.R. owned an equal share with any other road in the terminal company. The G.T.P. showed a willingness to do the same thing, but the C.N.R. refused to consider the proposition. Application was again made for ratification of the agreement, and the minister sent them back again. Next time the G.T.P. and C.N.R. men came back and said they were negotiating with a view to a settlement of their differences, one of the terms of which was that the C.N.R. would ask for the same rights north as the G.T.P. gets south. The C.P.R. was not mentioned as a party to the deal. Now the C.N.R. is making application to the city council for the rights. No action was taken last night other than that the letter was filed and the secretary instructed to furnish the council with a copy of the letter and of the clauses of the G.T.P. agreement relevant to the application. The following is Wm. MacKenzie's letter:

Toronto, November 14, 1906.
To the Mayor and Municipal Council of the City of Edmonton.

The Canadian Northern Railway Company hereby makes application for the right, subject to the approval of the board of railway commissioners of Canada to lay down, maintain and operate on its main line upon or near Clark street, thence crossing First street and along the northerly 40 feet of Columbia avenue as existing or produced to the westerly end thereof as can be there accommodated, the intention of the company being to continue such tracks to a junction with its main line at a convenient point to the east of Twenty-first street. Also the right to lay

COMMONERS HOSTILE

Demand Return Of Education Bill To The House Of Lords

Bulletin Special.
London, Nov. 28.—English Liberals are manifesting intense hostility to the Lords as a result of the mutilation of the Education Bill. An emergency meeting of the national federation was held today and unanimously adopted a resolution urging the Commons to reject the amendments to the bill. The meeting was the largest held in twenty years. The speakers warmly denounced the Lords and the Government was asked to return the bill to them without debate and also to apply the only remedy, which must be drastic and final.

London, Nov. 28.—A letter from Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, was read in which the Premier said that it was realized by all Liberals "that the House of Lords would hasten to assert itself as an instrument of Unionism as soon as the country rendered a verdict against the Unionist Government and Unionist policy." Continuing the letter said: "Still we may find guilty to a certain extent of surprise at the violence of the manifestation now that it has come. The Education bill as passed by the House of Commons was a bill which the country demanded in unmistakable terms at the general election. It now seems to have been turned into a travesty of its original form. As amended it purports to do what it does not extend the very grievances and wrongs inflicted upon the country by the act of 1902. Of one thing we may rest assured, we will have no tampering with the main principles upon which our bill is founded. If within those limits an arrangement can be reached, all well and good. If not, it will be for us to amend it as far as possible, and on other ways a way is found by which the wishes of the country may be made to prevail."

YORKTON BLOCKADED

Elevators Crammed And Shipping Business Directed To Other Points

Bulletin Special.
Yorkton, Nov. 28.—The grain blockade is acute. One quarter million bushels are in store here. The elevators are all brim full. Two hundred and fifty cars are wanted and few are available. Eighty loads came in today but could not find storage. Farmers are drawing grain that should be marketed at Yorkton to Buchanan, Canora, Veregin, and Kamsack, C. N. R. points. Three quarters of a million bushels have been diverted from Yorkton.

UNEXPECTED COMPLICATIONS

May Frustrate Settlement Of The Lethbridge Strike

Bulletin Special.
Lethbridge, Nov. 28.—Unexpected complications have arisen in the strike negotiations here which may entirely defeat all efforts at settlement. Negotiations are still proceeding although the outlook is decidedly pessimistic.

STRATHCONA ASKED FOR TWENTY YEAR FRANCHISE

Edmonton Will Instal Automatic Telephone If Sister
Town Will Give Terms. Commissioners Will Confer With Council

The city of Edmonton is going to ask the city of Strathcona for a 20-year franchise for the telephone business of the sister city.

The proposition is that if Strathcona will grant the franchise asked, Edmonton will instal the automatic system across the river, cable the Saskatchewan and connect them up direct with at automatic central here so that all the telephones of the two towns will be handled on the one switchboard. The intention is to put in 350 lines at once, and as many more as are asked for when the deal

WORLD'S MARKET

New York, Nov. 27.—London, 4 p.m.—Aitchison adv 5-5; C. adv 1-1; Erie adv 1-1; Illinois adv 1-1; L. N. adv 1-8; Pennsylvania adv 1-8; Southern Pacific adv 1-4; U. S. adv 3-8; pfd. adv 5-8.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 27.—It is again asserted with emphasis that the Hill interests are the heaviest buyers of M. K. T. on this advance. The significance is plain as this road has a gulf outlet and touches the Burlington at four different points.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Stocks are now in a position where we believe they are a good purchase. Money conditions more favorable, and the speculative interest in the market seems to be on the increase.

New York, Nov. 27.—The Mexican railroads are attractive. The low priced stocks will now soon be taken hold of and advanced to a price according to their earnings. On all little dips the market seems a good buy.

New York, Nov. 27.—The technical position, especially of the high priced issues which led to the advance, is tetter than for some time past. The selling of Union Pacific, St. Paul and Pennsylvania has been greatly offset stock put out largely by western interests while the buying among the good dividend payers has been of the best character on the declines. We have no hesitation in advising purchase of standard issues at market price as we do not think a rally of large proportions is very far away.

GIGANTIC COMBINATION

Of Western Roads—Great Northern Paid 147 Per Cent Dividends

Bulletin Special.
Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 28.—At the railroad and warehouse commission today a colossal combination of all roads in the west between the Canadian boundary and the Mexican line was indicated by James J. Hill, and this stupendous railway movement was checked by the refusal of one man to enter the combination. This man was himself, Commissioner Staples questions proved that stock holders of the Great Northern road have received the equivalent of 147 per cent in dividends during the past year, made up of 7 per cent from the operation of the road, 40 per cent in the form of stock dividends and 100 per cent from an ore land deal, the last being almost a free gift of Mr. Hill to the stockholders, inasmuch as he could rightfully have had the profit for his personal account. In the intensity of his feelings he hinted at a plan for a combination of all western railroads with himself at the head, which plan had not matured because of his refusal to take charge. Mr. Hill, after much examination, admitted that the stock of the companies which the Great Northern had purchased and still held by the Great Northern. "You may sell such stocks at any time," said Mr. Young. "I suppose there is nothing to prevent you from doing so and thus get double the money from these lines, as the Great Northern stock has already been issued and sold to cover their purchase price."

"Yes; Heaven may fall down and crush everyone on earth," replied Mr. Hill, with some heat.

Attorney-General Young said today, "As a result of the evidence secured in the examination of Mr. Hill showing duplicate issues of capital stock for the Great Northern branch lines, I am considering how to bring proceedings to complete the retirement of one set of stock either that of the branch lines which is still afloat and paying dividends or that of the main lines for the purpose of buying up subsidiary companies."

NO COMPANY FROM EDMONTON.

A meeting of the representative musicians of Edmonton was held on the 17th inst. to consider the matter of representation at the musical trophy competition at the musical trophy. The decision arrived at is set forth in the following letter to His Honor, the Lieutenant Governor:

His Honor,
G. H. V. Buies,
Lieutenant Governor of Alberta:
Your Honor:

At a committee meeting held this afternoon to consider the matter of His Excellency's musical and dramatic trophy competition it was decided that owing to the shortness of time, the present lack of musical organization and the expense of the trip, it would be unwise for the City of Edmonton to send a company to Ottawa to enter the competition.

The committee respectfully requests that Your Honor will convey the regrets of the musical people here to His Excellency and thank him for the honor done us in this matter.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(signed) HOWARD STURTEVANT,
Secy. of Committee.

As Edmonton is the only city in Alberta eligible under the conditions, this province will therefore not be represented.

TAX LIMIT EXTENDED.

The time in which the rebate could be secured in payment of taxes was last night extended from Nov. 31st to December 1st, in consideration of the fact that the assessment was late and consequently some of the property holders have not yet received their tax notices.

Collections of taxes have been heavy for a few days past.

IN BEDROOM FURNITURE

WE LEAD.

During the last few months we have been making selections of most artistic designs in Bedroom furniture, and now claim that we have the finest assortment this side of Toronto—magnificent creations in Quartered Oak, Bird's-Eye Maple, and genuine Mahogany, ones especially well suited in mahogany, inlaid with brass; most important to those who wish to practice economy, is the fact that these goods are priced for a quick turnover. To the Electors of the City of Edmonton

Edmonton, Alta., 27th Nov., 1906.

Fellow Citizens:—

In deference to the expressed wish of many citizens I have the honor to offer myself as a candidate for the forthcoming Aldermanic Election.

In placing myself at the disposal of the electorate I wish it to be clearly understood that I do so from no personal motives; that I have no private interests to serve; and that my sole object is to assist, as far as my abilities enable me, in the prosperity and advancement of our city and district.

For some years past I have been before the public, and my record has been open to general knowledge. I am led to believe that I must have merited confidence by the large number of electors who have invited my candidature; and it will be my earnest endeavor, if elected as one of your representatives, at all times to act impartially, and to speak and judge dispassionately in all matters affecting the public welfare. I do not believe in large promises—frequently made for election purposes only—I make none; with the single exception that my best energies will be placed at the service of the community.

The Council will, in 1907, be no picnic party, for there is even now a mass of work awaiting it, which will tax the ability of every member; involving not only financial skill, but a study of details and technical knowledge in many branches which will require hours of study to properly discuss, or even appreciate. The responsibility resting upon every alderman will be far greater than hitherto, for vast sums will have to be expended, and sound finance must be insisted upon. Economy must be enforced, bearing in mind, however, the present and future necessities of the Provincial Capital.

At present I consider that our system of electric cars in some form is a urgent necessity as a civic enterprise—not merely traversing a few selected thoroughfares, but running from the farthest limits of the city in each direction, and at reasonable rates. Our telephone is a disgrace at present, but probably the authorized work will remedy this trouble. I hold that our lanes and roadways need systematic and constant supervision; that a covered-in market is essential for public convenience, and that a central park should be secured without delay.

I have been for the last three years advocating for a public library, but it has been persistently turned down. I will work for it if elected.

With regard to the City Charter and its operation, I am not prepared to offer suggestions for its improvement without personal experience in its actual working. I am dissatisfied with it, but fault-finding is easy, whilst the remedy is frequently hard to find. I feel assured that much valuable time is wasted by unpunctuality, and consider that a time-limit should be imposed on speeches in the council.

With regard to the "ward system," my past experience has been of a satisfactory character, but the conditions then were very different to those existing here.

Referring to public works, I believe that more skilled supervision is required, and that the slight extra cost of paying competent and reliable overseers good wages, and making them personally responsible, would secure better quality as well as a larger quantity of work being done by the civic employees—and actually mean a positive gain, instead of loss.

I personally consider that all mains for water and sewers, as also the telephone and electric light wires, should be located on the lanes which have been so wisely placed at the rear of all our thoroughfares—repairs, etc., could then be cheaply and efficiently effected without annoyance to traffic, or interfering with expensive roads and sidewalks.

The water supply is good, but should, I submit, be analyzed frequently, and if necessary the source of supply inspected and controlled. This, with a better sanitary system would prevent much disease.

The future prospects of the city are so promising that it seems to me to be unnecessary to grant bonuses for the purpose of inducing industrial enterprises to settle in our midst unless in very exceptional cases and then only by popular vote.

These gentlemen, are my views on matters as they appear to me at the present time; they may be right or wrong—if the latter, I have a mind open to conviction. In submitting them for your consideration as the basis of my candidature, I need only add that if honored with your support I shall deal with every matter from a public spirited point of view, without fear or favour, and representing (as far as I can) the entire electorate of the city without any distinction of persons, classes, or localities whatever.

I am,

Gentlemen,
Your faithful servant,
C. H. STUART-EDWARDS.

STRATHCONA NEWS

BREWERY CHANGES

The announcement has just been made of a change in the business management of the Strathcona brewery by which Mr. Robert Ochsenrath has been joined by three prominent Westsaskatchewan citizens, Mayor Swabado, A. S. Rosenrohl, M. P. P. and Mr. Gross of the Rosenrohl Lumber Company. It is understood that upwards of $75,000 will be added to the capital of the company which will also be incorporated. Extensive improvements to the present plant are contemplated and it is understood that about $75,000 will be expended in this work. It is probable that Mayor Swabado will also remove to Strathcona and take an active part in the management of the brewery.

STREETS CLOSED

The town council was in session last night, the meeting of the previous week having been adjourned in order that some business of importance might be despatched with. The mayor occupied the chair and there was a full council board.

The main item of business was the adoption of the by-law for the closing and transferring to the Calgary and Edmonton Railway of certain streets as provided for in the agreement made on the 30th May last with the town of Strathcona, the C. & E. and the C.P.R. The by-law which last night received its three readings and was disposed of as far as the council was concerned provides for the transfer of the following:

- (a) Carey Avenue, from the east limit of West Railway street to the west limit of Grandin street.
- (b) East Railway street from the south limit of Mill Avenue to the north limit of Grandin street.
- (c) South Avenue from the east limit of West Railway street to the west limit of Grandin street.
- (d) Roy Avenue from the east limit of East Railway street to the west limit of Grandin street.
- (e) Alberta Avenue from the east limit of East Railway street to the west limit of Grandin street.

Telegraphic

New York, Nov. 27.—A fine of eighteen thousand dollars was imposed on the American Sugar Refinery Co. in the Circuit court for accepting rebates.

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 27.—A hundred and ninety political prisoners sentenced to deportation were despatched from here during the night on a special train for the northern part of Russia.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The trial of Alexander Ducloux, charged with having attempted to kill Alphonse Desrosiers, came to an abrupt end yesterday afternoon with the acquittal of the accused on the ground of insanity.

Boston, Nov. 28.—The position of President Charles W. Elliott, of Harvard university, with reference to different branches of college sports, was given in an interview made public here today. In it basketball and hockey are classed with football as objectionable. Baseball is declared to be open to many objections. President Elliott said: "To discontinue football, basketball and hockey at Harvard would do no harm. Basketball is very objectionable."

FRUIT AND CORN COUNTRY.

Farm and Ranch Review: The possibilities of Alberta as a fruit and corn country are only now being discovered. For a long time it was taken for granted that neither corn nor fruit could be raised in Central Alberta; this, however, has been proved erroneous. The effect of cultivation seems to have made our climate far less extreme than formerly and now both corn and apples are giving satisfactory results. In various localities all the way from the Montana boundary to Edmonton, and even further north, apples are being grown and each year a marked improvement is noticed.

We believe that in a very few years Central Alberta will be able to boast of her hardy fruits as loudly as she now can of her grain.

Corn will receive more attention in the future, and its production will become a matter of course, with beneficial results to both man and beast.

To the Electors of the City of Edmonton

I respectfully offer myself as a candidate for the honorable position of Alderman for the year 1907. In doing so I believe that I combine a knowledge of the practical working of the City's enterprises with a disinterested desire to promote the City's welfare, and to get a dollar's worth for every dollar to be expended by the City.

With the suggestions aimed against the present Finance Commissioner I have no sympathy. That gentleman has the only thorough grasp of the City's affairs possessed by any of its officials, and has always stood for to get everything that was the City's right and no more. The present Council has inaugurated enterprises that will cost upwards of $1,000,000 for the ensuing year and to in any way interfere with the tenure of office of the one official who by his integrity and entire command of the City's business has the undoubted confidence of the business men of the City would be dangerous and mischievous.

With the management of the public works of the City for the past year I am not in accord. I believe that the City has not received its money's worth; that the men employed by the City were not properly organized, and that the lack of organization in this department is most apparent and unless remedied quickly will with the extraordinary expenditure in sight result in calamity. There is urgent need for caution in the spending of the ratepayers' money, and I propose, if elected, to follow a safe course.

At the same time I believe that it is in the best interests of the City that the Electric Light and kindred enterprises should be placed under a thoroughly capable man as manager, who subject to a general supervision by the Commissioners, shall be supreme in his department. The same principle should be applied to the operation of the waterworks. The City having embarked in mercantile enterprises should appoint men to take charge of these who are experts and who would operate those enterprises with as keen ability as is employed by private persons or companies.

In the care of the streets the public has not received good service, and as good streets are of the most vital importance a change will have to be made.

As to the method of civic government the time has passed when the Aldermen can give personal attention to details. That is the duty of the Commissioners whose authority in this respect should not be interfered with. It is one thing to see that the Commissioners are doing their duty properly and quite another to interfere with the exercise of their functions. The Council will have quite enough to do to decide what should or should not be done without interfering with the effective carrying out of the work by those chosen by reason of special fitness to oversee the carrying out. Only by organizing a thoroughly capable and effective body of employees can the City hope to succeed in its many large enterprises.

In conclusion, I believe in better organization of the City's forces, in the employment to take charge of the civic enterprises of men specially fitted for the work and no others, in pursuing a cautious, rather than an adventurous policy, and in being exceedingly careful not to do anything that would depreciate the value of the City's securities in the money market, which would undoubtedly happen from any hasty or ill-considered changes. If honored by your confidence I shall esteem it an unquestionable obligation to serve no private or personal end, and to allow no personal prejudice or dislike to interfere with the welfare of the City.

Ladies and Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
J. R. BRENTON.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Dr. Quangel of Morinville, is in the city.

A. W. Cairns, cost office Inspector, Calgary, is at the Alberta.

Mrs. Sarah Filtsaus of 457 Eighth St. will receive Thursday afternoon Nov. 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, Jr., of the Douglas Co. Limited are about to move into their residence on the high river bank on Sixteenth street.

A. J. Sili, C. E. of Winnipeg, who has been out west, C. N. R. survey, and Fred Mannix, Stonewell, Manitoba contractor, arrived in the city yesterday, and are staying at the Peninsula.

CHORAL SOCIETY SECURES GRANT.

Vernon Barford appeared before the city council last night and asked for a grant of $300 toward a festival of song to be held in Edmonton within the next year. The proposition is to invite all the choirs of Alberta to be present and take part in a contest for a cup to be presented by Lieutenant Governor Bullock.

The council expressed itself as willing to lend its assistance to the scheme and voted $300 of a grant. The date is not yet set.

YOUNG LIBERALS.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Liberal club will be held at 8.30 in the Young Men's Liberal club rooms on Thursday evening, December 4th.

ANOTHER PETITION.

Another anti-C. P. R. petition was presented to the council last night, in which 18 ratepayers from the region north of Jasper and west of Ninth, asked the mayor and council to call a public meeting to consider and discuss the tentative proposals before they were executed into an agreement. The petition was laid on the table to be taken up at the same time as the agreement and the west-enders' petition. It requires 30 names on a petition before the mayor is under compulsion to call a public meeting.

UNIONS WILL BE CONSULTED.

J. A. Kenny, of the Trades and Labor Council, appeared before the city council last night to request that in the consideration of Ald. Manson's motion, of which he gave notice at the last regular meeting, setting a scale of wages for 1907, that the labor men be heard. He proposed that a committee from the city council should meet a committee from the labor council to discuss the scale before it was finally settled upon. The painters and decorators also had a communication in protesting that in their case at least the scale was beyond the regular union wage paid in the city.

Ald. Manson not being present, the consideration of the scale went over to a later meeting, but the councilors promised the Trades and Labor people that they would be heard before the scale of wages was adopted by the city of Edmonton.

NEW LETTER BOXES.

Edmonton is to have 25 new letter boxes. A letter was read at the council meeting last night from Inspector Cairns to the effect that the department proposed installing 25 new boxes and asking the privilege of putting them on the city's telephone and electric poles. The commissioners reported that they had already pointed out to Mr. Cairns that most of the poles were to be removed within the year. It was also asked who was to pay for the collection of the mail from the boxes now standing. At the present time the city pays $200 a year for the collection of the mail.

It was stated on the assurance of Mr. Cairns that the government would take over this work. The privilege of fastening the boxes to the telephone poles was granted, providing they be removed when the poles are to be taken down.

SEEING WELL AND SEEING EASILY

It is more important to see easily than to see well.

Good sight may be obtained by great strain, which drains vitality, causing headaches and nervousness.

By four independent tests we exactly measure eye defects, and correct by proper glasses, which relieve all eye defects.

Over 1500 people in this district wear our glasses, and every one of them is a living guarantee for us.

THE MAYORALTY.

Under our system of city government the position of the mayor corresponds to that of president and managing director of an industrial corporation. He is the head of the board of directors elected to determine the city's policy and is also the head of the executive staff employed to carry that policy into effect.

By this combination of offices the mayor is made the acting head of both branches of the city government to the end that there may be complete uniformity between the policy of the council and the performance of the commission. He is the "connecting link" between the work of the two bodies, with an active part to take in the work of each.

And for his work in the one capacity he should be the better qualified by reason of his work in the other capacity. If it were possible it would be altogether desirable that every member of the city council should be perfectly familiar at all times with the details of every department of the city's business. This is manifestly impossible and the dual position of the mayor is calculated to meet the case as far as practicable. As the head of the commission it is the business of the mayor to be in constant and intimate touch with every department of civic activity. He is thus in a position to bring to the deliberations of the council a fullness of detailed information which is necessarily denied the aldermen, but which it is necessary to have as a basis and background for their legislation. On the other hand as president of the council he is in a position to bring to the work of the commissioners a comprehensive personal grasp of the intention and purpose of the council. His duty is both that of interpreting to the council the conditions with which they have to deal and of interpreting to the commission the manner in which the council desires those conditions dealt with.

It is tolerably clear from this that the mayor of Edmonton must be more than a figurehead if he is to measure up to his opportunities and his responsibilities. Even in the council chamber his duty is far greater than under ordinary systems in which the presiding officer votes only in case of a dead-lock. The mayor of Edmonton has the same privilege of discussion and the same right to vote on all questions as an alderman. More than this he is expected by the aldermen to lay before them detailed information regarding any matter requiring their attention and is also answerable to them for the manner in which the commission is carrying on the executive work of the city.

But the work of the council chamber is the smallest part of the mayor's duty. As chairman of the commission it is his place to attend every meeting of this body, while his responsibility to the council demands that in the commissioners' meetings he be an active participant as well as the presiding officer. This means that at least half a day, every day, the mayor must be in attendance at such meetings while in times of unusual stress when the work devolving on the commission is unusually large he will find few days when his entire time is not required in discharge of the city's business. During the coming year this promises to be the rule rather than the exception and the mayor for 1907 will be either remarkably fortunate in his fellow-commissioners or remarkably lax in his duty if practically his entire time is not spent at the city hall.

CURRENT COMMENT

It is to be hoped that the present session of parliament will be signified by a radical departure from the tendency of recent years to protract the session beyond the requirements of necessity or reason. Canada's business is growing rapidly in volume and increase of business probably means an increase of time in which to discharge it, but it should also mean the elimination of superfluous discussion that the increase may be as little as necessary. As a matter of fact the increased length of sessions in late years has not been matched anywhere nearly matched by the growth of parliamentary business. But it has been matched by the growth of parliamentary talkativeness—and this is not merely a coincidence either.

It is probably impossible to curb the linguistic deluge by any form of legislative enactment which would not be open to censure as an infringement on the liberty of speech, which is regarded as peculiarly the birthright of the elect of the Dominion. But surely for their own comfort and the general welfare there could be developed among the saner heads in the house a despatch-of-business sentiment which would effectually chill the oratorical fires of their verbose associates. Canada is a great and wealthy country, but neither is its greatness exemplified nor its wealth increased by the cultivation of this parliamentary habit of saying nothing at great length.

Neither side of the House can claim immunity but the honors belong easily to the Opposition. True Providence in the person of Premier Whitney has deprived them of Andy Ingram, the swivel-tongued talker from East Elgin, but Colonel Hughes is still on deck and with the Colonel in fairly good health they can keep the House marking time till mid-summer. It is about time the Colonel's war-like spirit broke out again and regaled the House with reminiscences of his feats abroad. The incident should stand repeating at this length of time of how he spell-bound those half dozen furnished Beers and then kept going until the poor creatures broke wildly for freedom, preferring the chance of being respectfully shot to the certainty of lingering torture. These martial recollections, interspersed with chapter in a pathetic vein about the wrongs of the C. N. R., and a few paragraphs betimes for the benefit of the farmer members on how to operate a steam plough on the prairies should make the Colonel good for a month at least, and with a little encouragement and an occasional "spell" he could probably hold the lot till Easter.

The Colonel will not talk alone either; there be others among the Tescans who have things to say. Mr. Fowler, M.P., for instance, intimates to the Insurance Commission that there would come a time when he could talk straight ahead with no pacific Shepley to puncture his grandiloquence. The intimation was probably correctly interpreted as an announcement that Mr. Fowler would deliver a few informing lectures to the assembled parliamentarians on the advantages of differentiating agreements for sale. Mr. Foster, too, will probably have something to say on how to buy land without money. Messrs. Pope, Bennett and Lettice may be relied on to proffer enigmas to the business methods of the C. P. R. and department, while "Billy" Maclean might contribute some explanations as to how "Me nu Borden" got licked in Bruce. Altogether the chances are pretty good for a protracted flood unless some effective measures are promptly taken to avert the deluge.

The Highway of the North

BY W. H. FOOTNER.

The Peace River is destined to become the great highway of the whole north. At present it is navigable for flat-bottomed steamers all the way from Fort Hudson's Hope in the Rocky Mountains to the Chutes, fifty miles below Fort Vermilion, a distance of over six hundred miles. At the Chutes where the river tumbles over a limestone ridge, there is a half mile portage around which it would be easy to build a canal. This would open navigation down to Lake Athabasca and on down the Great Slave river to Fort Smith, where there are twelve miles of rapids. In the course of time, no doubt, the government will build a canal here too, and then the way will be open from the mountains clear through to the Arctic Ocean.

At present there are three steamers on the Peace: the Peace River, a twin stern-wheeler, with first-class accommodation for passengers, owned and operated by the Hudson's Bay Company, a smaller propeller run by the Roman Catholic missions, and a steam launch which was brought from the Lake of the Woods. Navigation is open on the Peace from about the twentieth of April, until the first of November, or later; when is only a week or two shorter season than the St. Lawrence. After the first of September, however, the water gets very low on the upper reaches of the river.

The "Peace River" makes regular trips between Fort Hudson's Hope and the Chutes during the season. It takes her about twelve days to go up and about one third of that time to descend the river. The current averages about four miles an hour. There are occasional places of swift water, but not a rapid during the whole way. At the Chutes the Peace River connects with the company's steamer Grampus, which goes down to Fort Smith. From the other side of Smith's Portage the steamer Wrigley makes one trip a season to the Arctic taking in supplies and bringing out furs. She also takes the treaty commissioners who take of the Indians and the treaty doctor who attends to their bodily ills. The visit of the Wrigley as may be well imagined, is the chief event of a monotonous year and her trip is a sort of triumphal progress.

The next big town beyond Edmonton will surely be built on the Peace and so railroad touches the Peace and so throws open the whole North during the season of navigation. This may be at Fort Hudson's Hope or at Fort St. John on the upper reaches of the river, but in view of the swiftness of the water up there towards the end of the summer, it is quite probable that a point lower down will be chosen. The river offers many advantages. This was eighteen feet of water there in the middle of September and across the river there is a vast expanse of water back for many miles and would give the line an easy grade to the river level. Moreover, on the north bank, almost directly opposite, is another place which would give access to the top of the bank. It is one of the very few places where a crossing of this vast trough could be made without an enormous expenditure.

At present the traveler from Edmonton and Lesser Slave Lake reaches the Peace at Peace River, about thirty miles below Fort Vermilion, three hundred and twenty-five miles above the river, while in the other direction, Dunvegan is seventy-five miles, Fort St. John about a hundred and thirty, and Hudson's Hope two hundred odd miles. The crossing consists of two stores and half a dozen huts. The "settlement" occupies a long narrow flat which is about five miles above the crossing on the other side. The settlement is one of the two places where farming is carried on on the banks of the Peace. The other place is Fort Vermilion. I believe that crops have also been put in at St. John and good vegetables are raised at Dunvegan, but not to any great extent.

At the "settlement" is the fine farm of the R. C. mission also the places of T. A. Brick, M. P. P., and others. There are in all about six white men with farms in the settlement, and twice that number of half-breeds. The land is excellent and in the fifteen years it has been cultivated there has never been an absolute failure. On top of the bank the land is much richer, and there are occasional summer frosts up there. Down on the flats the farmers have never had a killing frost. They are all hampered by insufficient help and the lack of modern agricultural implements. Anything of that kind costs a small fortune to bring in. With these obstacles removed, they would no doubt have sensational crops, as it is they invariably do well.

The river flat on which the settlement stands, is a long narrow strip about ten miles long and up to one mile wide. The open land has all been taken up for some years and the place has quite an old settled look. The flat is about thirty feet above the river, in places where the river sweeps in to the hills, it is broken by ridges, and there is a continual succession of beautiful views from the road, on the left hand is the river, on the right, the fantastically heaped and hollowed hills swaying up coulees and terraces and bathed in sunlight all day.

With the exception of Messrs. Brick and Carson and the mission, the farmers are disfiguredly amateur. The half-breeds farm a little, but a little, and a good deal. Money has not very much significance to them as yet. I never met a man who worried about anything in the north. As long as you are strong and well you are not very likely to starve. In the seasons when fur is plentiful, your credit is good at the store and you live luxuriously. When fur is scarce you scratch along as best you may and wait for better times.

The settlement has lately been surveyed by the government. Each original settler is allowed one hundred and sixty acres and those who took up their land before the last treaty were made (eight years ago) are, it is understood, to get all the land they have cultivated. The government will not sell any land at the present time.

The seasons at the settlement are much the same as at Edmonton. It has however the advantage of longer summer days and more sunlight at that season. Seeding is done at the end of April and the beginning of May. This year Mr. Brick started cutting his oats at the end of July and by the fifteenth of August all his grain was gathered. On the fourth of September he had his place. He was starting to thresh. As the first frost is due about the first of September the farmers have plenty of leisure. Their drawback, every district has some drawback, is the scarcity of rain at the beginning of the season. This of course could be met by more scientific farming.

The best of the wheat is the finest I ever saw, exceedingly large, firm, red grains. Much grain of a poorer quality is raised. Year in and year out they average about twenty-five bushels of wheat to the acre. This could not be easily doubled under other conditions. They grow fine oats too. In some places, six weeks after the oats had been cut, the second growth was quite two feet high and all headed out. The Hudson's Bay Company usually paid $1.25 per bushel for wheat at the settlement and farmers thought this very low. After the threshing is done, the company sends a launch up from Fort Vermilion each year; the grain is loaded on a barge, and towed down to the company's mill at that point. Mr. W. H. Carson has a small flour mill at the settlement also.

Although it is four hundred miles from a railroad they have a threshing machine at the settlement too. It was brought over the ice by Mr. Brick three years ago. The great difficulty is to get help enough to run it. I arrived at the settlement just as they were about to begin threshing. Even the assistance of a greenhorn, as long as he was young, was not despised. As I spent several strenuous days cutting hands on the feeding table, for the wheat on my non-agricultural readers I will explain that hand-cutting is done on a tiny platform at one end of the machine. The masses of grain are pitched at his head with more or less uncertain aim. He has to cut the spring that holds the grain in place as it is falling before the fluted grate. The slightest error of judgment and he is likely to jab the power's hand, when there is trouble. This is a very common accident on the grain line in front of you, when you are not using it. On the side of the head with a steel, you are being supported in the face by grains of wheat, carved out as it is by a catapult. It is a gloriously noisy, dirty, strenuous job.

Extraordinary vegetables are grown in this district. Besides all the coarser kinds, I ate ripe tomatoes, cucumbers and corn. I saw enormous cabbages, also cauliflower, celery, squash, pumpkins, and watermelons. Vegetables men to grow everywhere with only the most casual attention. The high north bank of the river which I have mentioned several times, is the favorite stamping ground for horses and cattle. It is covered with rich grass, the sun beats on it all day, and there is plenty of shelter among the aspen bushes in all the little hollows. So fond are the animals of this hillside that it is extremely difficult to keep worse horses and cattle away from the place. They hike for the hills at the first opportunity. As in other parts of Alberta it is customary to feed the cattle in the winter, while the horses rustle for themselves. They come out rolling fat in the spring. The settlers have to go a considerable distance for hay, it is usually secured around the lakes to the north of the river.

I did not have time to visit the settlement at Fort Vermilion. Three hundred miles down the river, but I gathered what information I could concerning it. Conditions are quite different down there. The banks are not high, but slope gradually back to the river. A great deal of the land has to be cleared. The settlement is larger, extending for fifteen miles back from the river, about five miles on the other and three miles back on each side. In all, twenty thousand bushels of grain were raised there this season. The largest farmer is Mr. Shabdan. He has a house, whose crop totaled eight thousand bushels. They had no frost this season, but occasion ally the farmers are obliged to build great smudges. The name is as the orange growers in California. There is a flour mill and a saw mill here and stores of the company and Revillon Brothers. There is also a Roman Catholic mission and an Anglican mission. I met two English ladies going to the latter. They missed the launch at the landing, and would be obliged to travel three hundred miles on a rail. Fort Vermilion is virtually cut off from the world from November to April. The only man who travels the three hundred mile trip over the ice (there is not a house of any kind all the way) is the mail carrier who makes monthly trips with a dog team. Fort Vermilion was surveyed this summer and river lots will be placed on the market next summer.

I stopped at the settlement ten days waiting for some means to make the next stage of my journey up to Dunvegan. At the end of that time two travelers with a buckboard and team, who had come all the way from Edmonton, no mean feat, arrived, and I made arrangements to accompany them. I had not them half way down the river and had been the means of offering them some slight assistance.

The road to Dunvegan climbs the hill behind Mr. Brick's place and strikes straight away across the prairie, cutting off by that means a big sweep of the river. From the edge of the north bank of the river the prairie sweeps away for miles and miles to the north and west. Very little is known about this country and only the edges have been explored and the maps are away off. I talked with a Frenchman who had been one hundred miles back, he said it was rich prairie land all the way, and much beyond that, with pea vines so thick it was difficult to walk through.

Still further out, on the shores of Hay Lake there is a French settler, who is said to grow oats and barley, besides vegetables of all kinds. I believe that this vast prairie land, which is said to extend for two hundred miles along the north bank and from fifteen to fifty miles in, is the country of the future. No one knows how much further north and west the good land may exist. It is true that at present there are occasional summer frosts up on the bench, but this was the experience of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and the rest of Alberta before the land was cultivated. As long as there is a hard set on the ground, the rays of the sun cannot penetrate into the earth and the heat radiates as soon as the sun goes down. When the land is cultivated, radiation is more gradual and there are no frosts. Fifteen years ago the Reverend Mr. Brick, father of the present member of the Alberta legislature, settled at Old Wives lake, in this tract I

MR. FIELDING DISCUSSES THE TARIFF

Hon. W. S. Fielding was tendered a banquet by Montreal Liberals last week. The star says:—

The Minister of Finance was enthusiastically received on rising to respond to the toast. He warmly thanked the Reform Club of Montreal for this reception which was not merely a demonstration in honor of himself, but a new affirmation by the Liberal party of Montreal of their faith in the party and its leader. Mr. Fielding first dealt with the recent election in Sherburne and Queen's, where he was re-elected by a large majority.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," said Mr. Fielding. It was evident that the gods had something unpleasant in store for the Conservatives of Nova Scotia. The efforts of the Conservative leader had been directed to what he declared was a sander upon the people of Queen's and Sherburne. It was inevitable that in an election some in discreet partisan should occasionally exceed the bounds of the law and do things which the election law did not contemplate. It was quite possible that such things occurred in his own constituency, as they probably would in any ruling where an election was investigated, as he had been. But he complained that the Conservative leaders had not presented the matter in that light, but that but of few party and comparative unimportant excesses, they had manufactured the story that the whole ruling was corrupt—and this, he declared emphatically, was a manner upon his riding.

Mr. Fielding here brought in a little political story to show that the Liberal party had not a monopoly on the unsavory of members. Since Confederation no less than 180 members had been unsavory. And these were divided almost equally, although there was a slight preponderance of Nova Scotia Liberals unsavory. And in Nova Scotia which had been particularly insubstantial in this regard twelve members had been unsavory of whom four were Liberals and eight Conservatives—so that he argued that corruption on the part of the Conservatives there had been just fifty per cent greater than among the Liberals. Many eminent Conservatives had been unsavory, such as the Hon. J. C. Abbott, twice, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir Charles Tupper, Hugh John Macdonald and even Sir John Macdonald, himself had been unsavory twice. So he argued, that the Conservatives were hardly entitled to throw stones in this matter of electoral purity.

In the laws handed down on Monday, continued Mr. Fielding, Sir Hector had been said about bribery, but one thing else had been made plain. "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." He declared that for months Conservative leaders had systematically misrepresented the facts of his election trial and distorted the proceedings before the Supreme Court in such a manner as to disgust honest Liberal and Conservative alike in his riding. He further accused the Conservatives of having fabricated fraudulent telegrams, and scattered them over his country, and declared that they were as much, or more, open to condemnation as any poor fisherman who in a moment of weakness had accepted a bribe.

His opponent, Dr. Weldon, Mr. Fielding stated, was styled by his party the champion of clean politics. Up at the last general election his opponent, Dr. Weldon, had been asked by a Conservative delegation to run, and when he insisted on a clean election the delegation folded its tents like the Arabs, and as silently stole away. Thus he said, the same Conservatives who were now shouting purity from the house-tops, and telling God that they were not, had entered upon the campaign in Nova Scotia with the deliberate intention of corrupting the electors if they were allowed to do so. "Ye puritans of the Conservative party, now behold your god."

The result of the recent by-election demonstrated said the speaker, that the people of Canada were not to be stampeded by a campaign of petty things. In the old days, no one could deny that the Conservative party was a party of big ideas and movements, but he declared that today their position was merely one of petty prejudices. In his own election, he had not heard about the tariff, the transcontinental railway, the great problems of transportation, or questions concerning the opening of the Northwest, but only about the petty scandals of last session. He did not understand the small, but argued that the people could rely on the administration and its officials to remedy any small defects.

The Minister of Finance then turned to the question of public expenditure. He admitted that a Government must stand or fall by its own record he proposed to show that the increase was justified by a comparison with the work of the previous administration. During the eighteen years of Conservative Government, he said their surplus had averaged about half a million dollars annually, while the annual surplus during ten years of Laurier's administration had been seven and a half millions.

In the last ten years the Liberal had expended money liberally on public works, spending no less than $27,000,000 in ten years on capital and special expenditure. At the end of this period they had only added eight and a half million dollars to the public debt. This he did not claim as a virtue because with the rapid growth of Canada and its demand for public works, it was not to be expected that they could carry on public affairs without adding to the public debt. It was a small increase, only averaging $280,000 a year, whereas the Conservative regime of eighteen years the debt had increased by six and a half million dollars a year.

These things were done in the face of a reduction in the burden of taxation, by cutting down the customs tariff. Least of all should he apologize for increasing the public debt in Montreal, where more than that increase had been spent in improving the harbor and the river channel, in order to bring to this city the commerce of the world. Mr. Fielding declared that the results of Liberal administration had been exhibited in Great Britain by the fact that Canadian securities had become almost as strong as British consols. This would be the future, when it would be necessary to renew many of the Dominion's maturing obligations. He did not believe that the people desired the lowering of the expenditure. Sir William Van Horne had once said that Canada had been living on a back street for many years.

He did not want any longer, but not on a moving forward to her proper position among the great countries of the world, with her business so expanding that her merchants, bankers and manufacturers had been compelled to increase their establishments to do as individuals what Canada was doing as a nation.

Mr. Fielding speaking, in part as follows:

"There is another question to which I wish to make reference, that is the great question of customs tariff. It is an important question at all times but particularly so just now. Years ago many good friends in Montreal had fear and anxiety as to what would happen to the commercial interests of Canada when they passed under the rule of Liberal Government. In 1897, when we brought down our new tariff policy, Sir Charles Tupper in a somewhat famous speech prophesied hearing the sorrowful wail of the industrial classes of Canada rising up to protest against this tariff policy. Well, you don't hear that wail now, now ex-claiming that the tariff is a great boon to the country, who find all their predictions unfounded. Under that Liberal policy there has been splendid progress, although the tariff policy can influence the development of a country may be a matter of debate. But the Conservatives thought the tariff had a great deal to do with the prosperity of the country when things did not go very well in 1878—they then said it was the fault of the tariff. You must form your own judgment of how much credit to give the Government for its tariff policy; but I suppose you will agree that

SORE BACK

"The doctor told me my back was the worst he had ever seen," said Mr. Alf. Lillierapp, of Walthamstow, when telling of what Zam-Buk had cured him.

"It was covered with eruptions which came in the form of headless pimples, and spread until my back was one mass. The itching at night was so bad that at last I had to have my hands tied to prevent me scratching myself and making the eruptions bleed. I took internal medicines and tried various salves; but in vain. One night I read about Zam-Buk and bought a box. Well I hardly know how to express my gratitude for the benefit I derived! That first box gave me relief and a few more cleared the pimples and eruptions from my body."

Similar eloquent testimony comes from Manitoba. Mr. R. J. Burgoine, of Harding, says:—"I had some very bad sores on my heel but Zam-Buk cured them in a few days. It also cleared my chest of an unsightly eruption."

ZAM-BUK NEEDED IN EVERY HOME.

Zam-Buk should be in every home. It cures cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, chilblains, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Heals ulcers, eczema, running sores, abscesses, may be safely applied to the delicate skin of babies and cures teething rashes. It also cures the pain of piles. It is good as an emollient, and excellent for rheumatism and neuralgia. Building the Grand Trunk Pacific

(From "Canada.")

It is gratifying to have to report that construction upon the western section of the Grand Trunk Pacific is progressing so satisfactorily that Mr. C. M. Hays, its president, and Mr. F. W. Morse, its general manager, are able to predict with certainty that the company will be in a position to do its share in handling next season's wheat crop from the prairies of the West. Mr. Hays will not bind himself to the fixing of any definite date for the entrance of the Grand Trunk Pacific into Edmonton, but he pledges himself and his company to reaching that capital of Alberta some time during next summer. This is gratifying news, alike to the people of Edmonton and to the shareholders of the new company, for Edmonton is daily becoming a more important commercial centre, and the country between it and the older settled sections of the new West is filling in a most remarkable manner.

Perhaps the most remarkable tribute paid to the Grand Trunk Pacific is a declaration by Mr. Collingwood Schreiber now chief consulting engineer to the Canadian government, but for twenty-five years deputy minister of railways of the Dominion. He says: "Canada will have a remarkable railway when the Grand Trunk Pacific is built. The surveyors have found a splendid line. It is practically straight, the maximum grade to the eastward being four-tenths of one per cent., and to the westward five-tenths."

"As the Grand Trunk Pacific people expect to do about as well through the mountains from Edmonton to the Pacific, and as the national transcontinental surveyors have practically secured these grades all the way from Winnipeg to the Atlantic, there is no doubt the line will be the best of all the transcontinental lines, and capable of the most economic administration and handling the greatest amount of traffic at a minimum cost."

"By autumn there will be over a hundred miles of the line west of Winnipeg rail, and there is little doubt that road will participate in the hauling of the crop next year. The settlers are going in with the road. Their shacks were seen dotting the prairie for the whole distance from Portage la Prairie to Edmonton."

"One curious development of the construction of the new transcontinental is that, owing to the scarcity of labor in Canada, the various contractors are importing workmen from all quarters of the globe. One of the most interesting of these was a party of 150 Highland Scotchmen who were recently landed at Quebec to work on the eastern section of the railway. Among the party were thirty-one MacLeods, nineteen McDonalds, ten MacKenzies, seven MacMillans, six MacKays, with a sprinkling of McWhinnies, MacArthurs, MacGillivrays, Mac-

Lagans, MacFarlands, MacDiarmids, and MacMurdos. It will be interesting for the historian of the future to ascertain whether these men, if they settle in eastern Canada, will become French-Canadians, like their forbears, the Highlanders who were disbanded in Quebec two hundred years ago, and whose descendants are now absolutely French-Canadian. There are MacPhersons, MacNabs and MacDonalds along the lower St. Lawrence who cannot speak a word of English. In this case the woman's blood proved the stronger, and the influence of the mother proved more effective than the blood and the tradition of the father.

It is seldom that a better equipped construction train is sent out by a railway company than that now operating west of Portage la Prairie. It consists of about fifty dining and sleeping cars, four official and three foremen's cars, and a couple of tool wagons. This is the actual outfit, but in addition there are also some 300 flat cars for use in carrying gravel, steel, etc. Then there is No. 1 locomotive and a huge steam shovel, which, however, has not yet been put into use. The gravel pit is in the vicinity of the camp, and it is intended next spring to use the steam shovel to load the flat cars with ballasting material.

The staff engaged in connection with the construction train is above the average, both in numbers and in quality. There are some 100 men employed directly in the yards, such as mechanics, carpenters, telegraph men, etc., and between 125 and 150 on the steel laying gang. All are competent workmen in their respective lines of occupation, and the working conditions are such that the contractors experience no difficulty in keeping the gang up to the required numerical standard. In fact, it has been stated that since the harvesting operations of the district have ended, the supply has been greater than the demand, and consequently the contractors have been able to make selections.

This work now makes progress at the rate of about two miles a day, and this speed will be maintained until operations cease for the year. In the early spring a big addition will be made both to the construction outfit and the number of men employed, and steel laying work will be pushed on at about four miles per diem. It is computed that there is at present in the material yards at Portage la Prairie enough telegraph material and steel to cover about 400 miles of railway, but considerable trouble has been experienced in getting a sufficient quantity of ties, and the supply is running short.

There is also gathered in the yard tracks a considerable quantity of the company's rolling stock—passenger coaches, box cars and flat cars—and more are expected shortly.

The Highway of the North

speak of. Our of the five crops he put in, he secured three, which is not a bad proportion considering he was the pioneer. At the present time one settler is trying his luck on the prairie. This season he had a small amount of barley and a much finer vegetable garden than any down on the flat. The land as far as that goes is incomparable. We had no trouble with frost this season.

We traversed sixty miles of this prairie between the settlement and Dunvegan. It was the prettiest agricultural land I ever set eyes on and if the rank weeds, wolf willows, fireweed, etc., are any criterion, exceedingly rich. We dug holes here and there and found a heavy mellow black loam with a clay subsoil. It was a parklike country, with numerous poplar bluffs; as we proceeded it gradually opened up until we could see thousand acre tracks without a stock on them. My companions who were experienced farmers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, said they had not seen the equal of this country in those provinces. Water is scarce at the end of the summer. There is however a chain of lakes from ten to fifteen miles back from the road. This road, by the way, is excellent. Coming down the hill again at Dunvegan one has another glorious view of the Peace. The banks here are also of the river narrower, and the water seems a deeper green. One cannot say enough in praise of the beauty of this remarkable stream.

I have been asked many times how to get to the Peace River. In the first place I would strongly advise those who are thinking of emigrating to see the country first. It is a glorious country, but at present it is only for the strong, hardy and self-reliant. There is room at present for more good farmers, especially if they know a trade also, but the country will not support many of them until there is a better means of communication, which there is bound to be soon. At the present time it is virtually impossible to take in heavy goods or stock during the summer. The best way is to go in yourself first, pick out your location, have hay put up, and then bring in your goods and stock the following February, just before the ice goes out. The winter roads are first class all the way.

A FELT SHOE WITH A GOOD REPUTATION

WHY ? WHY

Because Berlin Shoes are made of pure wool. Good heavy natural wool soles. No nails in the heels to push up in the feet and make them sore and cold. Every detail that goes in the shoe is the best, even to the thread and eyelets. A Felt Shoe made by the largest and oldest makers of Felt Shoes in America. By insisting on the Berlin Brand you are insisting on quality.

WORLD'S MARKETS!

(Reported by Canadian Grain & Stock Co.)

yesterday which was steady and a shade higher, stocks became very active and the advance which we predicted in our letter of Monday evening, started in with a rush, the active issued advancing from one to three dollars per share. On this advance there was some good profit taking by buyers who had taken advantage of the recent dip in prices to pick up the recent dip in stocks and this class of selling made the close a little easier at the recession from the day's highest figures.

We continue to favor purchases of stocks on all recessions especially the medium and low priced shares and we look for a continuance of these good active markets.

DAILY MARKET LETTER

Winnipeg, Nov. 27.—In spite of a good array of bearish news, the market has ruled relatively strong. Opening prices were unchanged to a shade lower. Later a little profit taking and short sales were responsible for a moderate decline, but a fall commission house demand developed and the market turned dull and turned a shade weaker. Liverpool cables were unchanged to 1-8 lower for futures and 1-4 to 1-2 higher for spot. Paris was unchanged to 1-2 lower. Northwest receipts were larger than any previous day and Minneapolis, Duluth and Winnipeg had a total of 1517 against 1662 a year ago. Minneapolis stocks of wheat decreased 15,000 bushels for three days. Flour shipments from that point fairly large and today 41,938 barrels are reported. Bradstreet's report on the world's visible supply furnished the surprise for the market for the day as it showed that stocks in the United States and Canada increased 4,392,000 bushels in the last week, and a total increase in the world's visible supply 4,392,000 bushels. Bradstreet's weekly foreign summary, says weather generally mild, with some complaints from Germany of rice and insect damage. Primary receipts today 1,099,000 vs. 1,362,000 last year. Shipments today 849,000 against 775,000 last year. Clearances, wheat and flour equals 348,000 bushels. The feeling is growing that wheat is unduly depressed and the present high premium paid for cash is pointed out as conclusive proof that farmers will not sell their wheat at the present level.

GRAIN

(Tuesday, Nov. 27.)

Minneapolis, Nov. 27.—Wheat is in good demand and prices show some firmness. Believes a better range of prices will soon come.

Duluth, Nov. 27. Flax: The large receipts are having a bad effect on the trade in flax. Prices while steady do not show much snap. Believes would accept profits in sight on any little up turn.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—It is thought that Bradstreet's on the world's visible will show about 1,350,000 bu. increase.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—The strong situation in corn is being realized and traders are coming in this market in increased numbers. The report on the visible supply showed the stock of corn at terminal points, barely enough for three days in an active market. Those who good clearances together with the good cash demand and wet weather throughout the belt will, in our belief, cause further advance in the immediate future.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—While the bears seemed to have an even chance yesterday, they had no time to rest in control. The increase in the visible was a surprise. It was only natural to suppose that shippers would try to take advantage of the last month of navigation to increase their water shipments. There is no relief in the receipts either, north-west nor west and the clearances are the largest of the year. The December contracts will very soon be out of the way and with that out of the road we believe the bulls will soon show the bears how wrong they are on conditions.

New York, N.Y., Nov. 27.—St. Paul and Copper are good purchases and will quickly return good profits. Those who endeavor to catch the market returns in M. K. T. should not be satisfied with limited profits. It will sell very high in the near future. The general situation will show improvement within a comparatively few days.

Ralph Connor writes thus of the book "My Travels, Vagabond and Land Far Near," by Robert Shields, a new edition of which has been published:—"Mr. Shields has produced a remarkable book. It is unique in style, and is full of interesting material. He has been fortunate in meeting many of the day, and his travels have brought him many of the world's most interesting and beautiful spots. His book shows, too, that he has carried with him on his travels an observant eye.

Mr. Fielding Discusses the Tariff.

If the tariff policy can't help a country, a mistaken tariff policy may retard its growth. And for the 10 years during which this country has been under a liberal tariff it is not too much to say that it has progressed more than during any single period in its history.

"Now the time has come when it is proposed to make a change. Not necessarily a change in substance to any great extent. We have already indicated broadly the lines upon which that change is to be made. I think today there is a grave danger in Canada against which we must guard. There are differences of opinion in every province on the tariff question, just as there are different schools of thought on the subject. But there is a danger of a broader line of cleavage arising—a difference between the East and the West; a difference between the Western farmer and the manufacturing interests of the East. I have labored to persuade my manufacturing friends that, from their own point of view it would be a mistake to enter upon a policy of high protection in Canada. For undoubtedly the adoption of such a policy would so antagonize the agricultural interests of this country that your high tariff would never be safe and our manufacturers would have to spend your time as in former years, in log rolling about Ottawa in order to keep the thing that was granted you. Therefore, I have tried to persuade our manufacturing friends that the best policy for them is one that will fill the Northwest with prosperous and contented settlers.

"Now the west will gradually gain its manufacturers. By and by an era of manufacturing will grow up in that country and there will be the same diversity of opinion there as exists in the East today. But for the present and for a considerable time to come that great western country will be predominantly agricultural and the Western farmer—and perhaps the Eastern farmer too—has an idea that taking it all in all, his interests are identified with a low and moderate tariff.

"We have been laboring with the manufacturer, but we have also labored with the Western farmer. We have met in tariff deputations, and where we found them disposed to look at things from their own point of view, and think that that should be the policy of the country, we had to point to them that they must give and take, and not expect to have things all their own way, but be willing to have regard to the Eastern people, who in days gone by have contributed of their means to develop the western country we have asked them as well as the manufacturers to be moderate and reasonable and not regard simply their own interests, but the interests of all. Our Prime Minister has devoted the best part of his life to the removal of friction between our peoples of different races and creeds, and nobly has he discharged that duty. The next highest duty that I believe can be undertaken by men in public life is to reconcile these possible differences between the growing West and the older East. If we can get indutrial peace and commercial goodwill between the Eastern country and the population of the West, that task stands only next to the high work to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier has devoted his life.

"So I say the time has come to make some revision in our tariff. We do not of necessity make changes in its general character. As to the details, they can only be given before the high court of legislation in Parliament, but I will give the general principles.

In the first place we propose to have a change in the form and shape of our tariff schedule. That may not necessarily involve great changes, but in the making of these changes in form, here and there the occasion may arise for some changes in substance. First we propose a tariff of moderate character. High enough to give moderate and reasonable encouragement—protection if you prefer the word—to the industrial classes of our country. We do not desire to strike down any industry, as we have proven by our past policy. We desire a moderate and reasonable tariff which will give a measure of protection to our commercial life, but yet not be heavy enough to antagonize the great consuming masses of the country. (Applause.)

"Then we propose to adhere to that principle of British preference which we laid down in 1897. We laid down that principle in the face of adverse criticism, but we believe it has been a great factor in the upbuilding of Canada's position in the Empire, and the world.

"And in the third place, we propose to have a tariff column—a tariff which shall contemplate later the making of such commercial arrangements as shall establish legitimate discrimination between the trade of the country that wants to trade with us and the trade of the country which, for its own reasons puts up its bars and says, 'We can buy from them, but if they can help it, we shall not sell to them.'

"There are the general lines of tariff provision that we do not anticipate to please everybody—even the tariff of 1897 did not do that. There may be some extremists of the high tariff school who will say we are not doing enough, and I know there will be many extremists of the low tariff school—not confined to the West either—whom we shall fail to satisfy entirely. But we are a strong and growing nation and we shall reach the nappy medium and while some may have doubts and fears we may say that this policy in the past has vindicated itself by time, so our policy—if you call it new—will vindicate itself, and those who are doubtful about it had better go on full of hope that all will be well. Though we cannot satisfy the high or the low extremists, our hope and belief is that we shall be able to satisfy the great mass of the Dominion, and to produce a tariff under which the trade and commerce of our country will progress and prosper in something like the ratio of the past ten years, and we dare even hope for a yet greater development in the future.

MODES AND MANNERS FOR MEN

The Art of Being Well Dressed is Studied Beforehand.

The great art of dressing for men is that they shall feel and look at home in their clothes—at ease in whatever they wear. One may wear the finest materials, silk lined and satin finish and still be out of it if the materials are not in good form and appropriate to the man and the occasion. The art of being well dressed, whether a man or woman, is to have a pleasing ensemble.

In all the Semi-ready dresses and fabrics the endeavor is to adhere to the conventions of good form and to tailor or only suits and overcoats which will meet with the approval of gentlemen who appreciate individual tone and expression. There are no loud or gaudy patterns in the Semi-ready wardrobe. Kelly and Moore will show the real Semi-Ready look to anyone. It is on the inside pocket of coats, overcoats and vests.
